Sexual Harassment

Protect yourself with a proactive response to this fraught issue. Restaurants aren't required to have a human resources department, but they are legally required to make sure their employees are not subjected to harassment or discrimination. Learn best practices for restaurant owners and managers to ensure your company is complying with the law, and following policies and procedures that provide employees with guidelines on risk-management, troublesome behavior, and how to report issues of misconduct. A must-attend roundtable for small business owners in this time of negative news report and industry attacks on the restaurant industry.
